UK companies have acquired or made investments in companies with significant compliance issues that were:

- 70% of UK compliance leaders feel stretched by their company’s attempts to expand into new markets and adopt new business models
- 59% of UK general managers encourage employees to apply their own moral compass to compliance decisions rather than relying on static policies and procedures
- 52% of UK respondents are aware of compliance issues that have yet to be discovered by a regulator
- 59% of UK compliance heads say compliance standards vary widely across different countries or locations
- 59% of UK respondents are most likely to predict a rise in compliance breaches as regulation becomes more complex: 66% reported that concern
- UK respondents reported more open cultures than their global peers: only 28% are reluctant to speak openly about compliance challenges for fear of issues being highlighted

Other points of note in the UK:

- UK Factsheet