86% say they have seen major technological disruption in their sector over the last 2 years.

61% predict the rate of change will accelerate, and 29% believe the rate of change is exponential.

31% see themselves as leading the change.

31% said they were highly adept at exploiting the benefits of new technologies.

Almost half (46%) rate their companies as being somewhat successful in managing the risks from new technologies.

How successful is your organisation at managing the risks of new technologies?

- Somewhat successful
- Just about keeping pace (Neutral)
- Unsuccessful

The greatest cost increase over the next two years:

- 72% Regulatory Compliance
- 54% Investment in new technology
- 38% Materials, Manufacturing Production
- 70% believe regulators are well behind the curve in terms of keeping up with technology driven change.

Methodology: 600 respondents surveyed to capture the opinions of C-suite executives and director level managers of their respective organizations. 100 of these respondents were leaders of multinationals in India, or those headquartered in India. Survey respondents were split across corporations with a primary industry focus in: energy, mining and infrastructure; technology; media and telecommunications; healthcare; financial institutions; consumer goods and retail; and industrial, manufacturing and transportation.